This is the ninth of a series of new-style county histories which will include all of the 102 counties in Illinois and, ultimately, all of the 3,103 counties in the United States. The project, specializing in aerial photographs of cities, towns, villages and farmsteads, is known as The American Aerial County History Series.

In the preparation of this work on De Witt County, Illinois, the author and publisher hereby acknowledge their gratitude, for advice and assistance given them, to Mr. Joseph Wolf and Mrs. Ellen Chase of the Newberry Library, Chicago; to Mr. Herbert H. Hewitt, Mrs. Roberta Sutton and Miss Winifred Baum, all of the Chicago Public Library, Chicago; and to various librarians, public officials, business executives and private citizens of the city of Clinton and the county of De Witt, Illinois. The author also wishes to express special acknowledgment to his wife, Marion Neville Drury, for research, editorial and proof-reading assistance.

Grateful appreciation is also shown here to officials of the Bureau of Public Roads of the U.S. Department of Commerce and to officials of the Department of Public Works & Planning of the State of Illinois (in particular to those in charge of that department's Bureau of Research and Planning in the Highway Department), for permission to use the De Witt County maps included in this book.

Story of De Witt County, Illinois

Situated in almost the geographical center of Illinois and in the midst of that region's great, level corn-growing belt, De Witt County is another of the several thereabouts which are intimately associated with the legal career of President Abraham Lincoln. For one thing, it was in DeWitt's county seat, Clinton, that Lincoln, in reply to a false charge made by Stephen A. Douglas, uttered his celebrated aphorism: "You can fool all the people part of the time and part of the people all of the time, but you cannot fool all the people all of the time."

Another outstanding character of Illinois history closely associated with De Witt County was Jesse W. Fell. An ancestral kinsman of Adlai E. Stevenson, recent governor of Illinois and Democratic candidate for President in 1952, Jesse W. Fell was not only a leader in the development of central Illinois, a friend of Lincoln's and founder of Illinois State Normal University, but he was also the "father" of the county of De Witt and the city of Clinton.

Today, De Witt County, located almost equidistant from Chicago and St. Louis (nearly 150 miles from each city), is one of the leading agricultural counties of the Prairie State. More than 29 per cent of its 6,231 mature inhabitants currently employed are engaged in agricultural pursuits, while 5.3 per cent are engaged in manufacturing. The value of all of its farm products in 1949 (when last estimated by the federal census) was $12,485,000, whereas the value of its manufactured products then was $256,000.

Whatever manufacturing is done, however, centers mostly in and near the city of Clinton. Among the leading industrial plants here are the Beatrice Foods Company, Clinton Pure Ice Company, Clinton Tank Company, Lee Garment Company, Clinton Ice Cream Company, Illinois Central System Shops, Clinton Ceramic Company and the Revere Copper & Brass Company.

"The Grand Prairie"

In the days of earliest travel through the region by white men, what is now De Witt County was part of a vast, level area of tall grass that came to be known as "The Grand Prairie." It was an area frequently hunted over by bands of Illini Indians, and, at a later period, by members of the Kickapoo tribe and a few Pottawatomies. All of these Indians located their principal towns and villages along the Illinois and Mississippi rivers.

Although the original Illini tribe had earlier surrendered their rights to the "Grand Prairie" and other portions of Illinois, it was not until 1819 --- one year after Illinois was admitted to statehood --- that the Kickapoos finally ceded their rights, too. This was done through the Treaty of Edwardsville, signed on July 30, 1819. With the signing of the treaty, most of the Kickapoos of the grasslands area moved westward beyond the Mississippi River, but many lingered behind after the first white settlers arrived. The last of them did not leave until about 1830.

First Settlers

First settlers of the region that afterwards became De Witt County (this region was then part of Sangamon County) were a party of five persons, who arrived late in the fall of 1824. They were Zion and Edon Shugart and their mother, and Elisha Butler and his wife. The group staked out a claim in what is now Tunbridge Township, at the southwest corner of the county, and soon had log cabin homes built and small farms under cultivation. Several years later John Coppengraber, brother-in-law of the Shugarts, arrived with his wife, and he, also, became a farmer. He later built the first mill in the area.

Waynesville Platted

Seven years before De Witt County came into existence there was laid out the village of Waynesville. Still a lively village, with a present population of 516, Waynesville is therefore the oldest community in De Witt County. It is located in the northwest corner of the county, in Waynesville Township.

Named after General Anthony ("Mad Anthony") Wayne, one of the heroes of the American Revolution, the village of Waynesville was established in 1832 by George Isham. Immediately afterwards, he built the first house in the village and, in 1836, erected the first school-house.

Before Waynesville was platted, however, a general store stood on the site. It was opened in 1830 by the firm of Greenman & Dunham. This store was not only the first in Waynesville Township but the first in De Witt County.

De Witt Village

Second oldest community in the county is the village of De Witt, located on the Illinois Central Railroad northwest of Clinton and with a population in 1950 of 216. As with Waynesville, it was laid out before De Witt County was formed; the village was originally called Marion. The founder of the village was Benjamin S. Day, who platted it on March 7, 1836. A year later, the new village of Marion held its first election in the cabin home of Benjamin Day, and Fleming C. Paine and Gabriel Watt were elected first justices of the peace. The first constable was James Hutchison. After De Witt County was organized in 1839, and named after Governor De Witt Clinton of New York the village of Marion changed its name to De Witt.

Clinton is Born

Another community that came into being before De Witt County was organized is Clinton, now De Witt's county seat and the county's largest city, with a present population of nearly 6,000. It was just seven months after Benjamin Day laid out the village of Marion (now De Witt) that Jesse W. Fell, in association with James Allen, platted the townsite of Clinton. Both of them were residents of Bloomington, and both were pioneer land developers in the central Illinois region.

Among other Illinois cities founded by Jesse Fell were Bloomington, Pontiac and Lexington. He also fathered Illinois State Normal University at Normal and established one of the state's leading newspapers, the Bloomington Pantagraph. Perhaps his most outstanding accomplishment, however, was the work he did, in association with two other Illinois leaders (Judge David Davis and Leonard Swett) in bringing about the nomination of Abraham Lincoln for President.

After Jesse Fell and his associate platted the town of Clinton on October 3, 1836, there arrived William Anderson, who is on record as having built the first dwelling house in the town. This house, constructed of logs, also served as a hotel. But in 1839, the year De Witt County was organized, William Anderson erected a more commodious hotel, and here, in the years following, stopped such legal celebrities of the time as Lincoln, Leonard Swett and Judges David Davis and Samuel H. Treat.

Farmer City

One more community was platted before De Witt County was established --- Farmer City. When it was laid out in 1837, however, it was called Mount Pleasant. The founders of Mount Pleasant were Nathan Clearwaters, John W. Bradley and Robert M. Patterson, all early settlers of what is now Santa Anna Township. In 1868 the town of Mount Pleasant was incorporated as a city and its name changed to Farmer City. Its first mayor was James Keller. Today, Farmer City is the second largest community in De Witt County, its 1950 population having been 1,752.

Organization of County

By the year 1839 there were more than 3,000 inhabitants living in the region which, that same year, became De Witt County. Although this prairie region had earlier belonged to Sangamon County, it was, by 1839, about equally divided between McLean and Macon counties. Thus it came about that sizable portions of these two counties formed the basis of De Witt County. The legislative act creating De Witt County was signed by Governor Thomas Carlin on March 1, 1839.

It was Jesse Fell, founder of Clinton, who led the movement for creation of the new county. At that time his associate, James Allen, was a member of the state legislature, and it was Allen who introduced the bill that brought about the formation of De Witt County. A short time later, the residents of the new county voted in favor of Clinton as a county seat, although Marion (later re-named De Witt) made a strong bit for that title.

At the new county's first election, held May 15, 1839, the voters selected John Maxwell, James Vandeventer and John Hughes as the county's first board of commissioners. Other officials elected that day were: E. W. Fears, sheriff; John J. McGraw, county clerk; William Lowery, recorder; Fleming G. Paine, probate justice; Isaac McCuddy, coroner; and Jesse C. McPherson, treasurer.

Governor De Witt Clinton

Both De Witt County and Clinton city were named after De Witt Clinton, greatest of New York governors. His most important achievement was that of sponsoring the construction of the Erie Canal, a waterway, completed in 1825, that connected the Great Lakes with the Atlantic Ocean. It was through this canal that thousands of Easterners came west and settled in northern Illinois and other states of the Great Lakes region. Before his election to the governorship of the Empire State, De Witt Clinton had served for many terms as mayor of New York city. He ran for President in 1812 but was defeated by Madison. He died in 1828.

First Courthouse

One of the first steps taken by De Witt County's first board of commissioners was to provide for a temporary courthouse at Clinton. A public square had already been donated by Jesse Fell, and on this site the commissioners ordered that a temporary courthouse be erected; a building to be one story in height, 20 x 36 feet, and "furnished in ordinary manner." The contract for construction of this edifice was awarded to Henry Dishon, who offered to complete the work for $604. He finished the building in September, 1839, and thereafter it became the county's seat of justice.

Attorney Lincoln

At one of the earliest sessions of the circuit court in De Witt County a resident was charged with murder --- and his lawyers were none other than Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas. At that time, of course, both Lincoln and Douglas were attorneys who traveled the Eighth Judicial Circuit, which included newly-organized DeWitt County.

It was in 1841 that Spencer Turner was charged with the murder of Matthew K. Martin. After being defended by Lincoln and Douglas, in the county's temporary courthouse at Clinton, Turner was acquitted, and for their services Turner gave each of his lawyers a promissory note for $200. We are told that the note given Douglas was paid soon afterwards, but that the one given Lincoln remained unsatisfied.

At the next session of the circuit court in Clinton, Lincoln brought suit against Spencer Turner and his brother, William, who had endorsed the Lincoln note. Although Lincoln won the suit, he could not collect from the Turners; they were both too indigent to settlement the judgment against them. In this situation, Spencer Turner offered a horse to Lincoln in lieu of money. Lincoln accepted the horse, but soon thereafter, we are told, the horse became blind and eventually proved worthless to the future president of the United States.

Second Courthouse

It was in 1849 that De Witt County's second courthouse was completed at a cost of $3,565, part of which ($1,000) was contributed voluntarily by the citizens of Clinton. An early description says of it: "This structure was of brick, two stories in height, 32 x 44 feet in dimensions, and with a cupola and bell. For its day it was of imposing appearance, and it soon became famous for the number of noted lawyers who appeared in it."

When this second courthouse was dedicated in June, 1849, the program was given an added note of gaiety by the expert fiddle-playing of a young man from adjoining Piatt County, where he was then serving as county clerk. That young man was Richard J. Oglesby, afterwards to become an outstanding Mexican and Civil War officer, a governor of Illinois for three terms, a United States senator for Illinois and one of President Lincoln's closest friends.

Lincoln as a Judge

It was in this second De Witt County courthouse at Clinton that Abraham Lincoln once reversed his familiar role of attorney and became a judge. During a court session one day, the presiding judge, David Davis, was unexpectedly called away from Clinton, but before leaving he appointed Lincoln as a temporary judge --- an appointment agreed to by both sides in the case on trial. It appears that Lincoln served as a fair and impartial judge in the matter before the court, for, we are told, "no appeal was ever taken from his decision."

Coming of the Railroads

One of the most important factors in the development of De Witt County was the building of the Illinois Central Railroad through it in 1854. Today, the main line of this road runs midway through the county in a north-south direction, with Clinton as the most important station on the line in De Witt County. One who led the way in providing legislation for the establishment of the Illinois Central Railroad was Senator Stephen A. Douglas, who earlier in his career had often appeared as a lawyer in Clinton. The road was organized by Robert Rantoul and a group of Eastern capitalists.

County Agricultural Society

An early and influential organization in the county was the De Witt County Agricultural Society. Although it was first organized in 1855, with John D. Hutchin as its first president, the society did not stage its first county fair until the fall of 1866. This fair, says one account, was "held in an open field overrun with smartweed and dog-fennel, and enclosed by ropes tied around stakes driven into the ground." At a later date the society built a formal fair grounds, consisting of a half-mile racing track, a large amphitheater, floral hall and numerous sheds and stalls.

Third Courthouse

Still standing today is De Witt County's third courthouse, an imposing three-story edifice of stone surmounted by a central clock tower. The corner stone for the building was laid on August 31, 1893, with impressive Masonic ceremonies. It was completed and dedicated on July 4, 1894. The cost of the building, including furnishings, was about $70,000. For many years after it was completed, this courthouse was used not only for county business but for church, farm and school meetings, and even for political gatherings. At a later date, however, the Board of County Commissioners ruled out ice cream socials in the building, or any other gathering for which "eatables" were to be sold.

Weldon Springs Park

In the Clinton area today is located Weldon Springs Park, a recreation area of 115 acres. The park was laid out in 1897 and named after Judge Lawrence Weldon, a pioneer lawyer, friend of Lincoln's, and a judge of the United States Court of Claims. He was the original owner of the land on which the park is located. An attractive, wooded, hilly tract with walks and picnic facilities, the park is centered on a lake covering an area of some fifteen acres. Fishing, swimming and boating are afforded by the lake, and during the summer months both the lake and park are crowded with families from Clinton and the surrounding countryside.

Chautauqua Assembly

Another influential organization in the county, one that greatly advanced the cultural and social standing of the area, was the Weldon Springs Chautauqua Assembly. It was formed in 1900 at the suggestion of Judge Lawrence Weldon. One history of the county says of it: "From its inception, the assembly has been a pronounced success, both from a social, intellectual and financial viewpoint. And as its programs indicate from year to year, the best platform talent in the country has been drawn upon to advance the intellectual level of De Witt County residents. As the years have gone by, improvements on the grounds of Weldon Springs Park, where the assembly meets, have kept pace with the requirements of the association."

De Witt County Today

According to the latest U.S. census figures, De Witt County in 1950 had a total population of 16,984, which in rank placed it 1,674th among the 3,103 counties in the United States. Its principal city and county seat, Clinton, had a population of 5,945. With a land area of 399 square miles, the county's density of population was 42 inhabitants per square mile.

Of the county's total population, 5,945 were classified as urban dwellers (all of whom lived in Clinton city), 5,851 were classified as rural non-farm residents, and 5,098 were classified as rural farm dwellers. There were 1,615 babies in the county in 1950 under five years of age, and 1,978 persons sixty-five years old and over. The median age of the total county population was given as 33.2 years. In that same year, there were 11,140 potential voters in the county.

Under the heading of vital statistics, there were 329 births and 206 deaths (including nine infants); also there were 179 marriages. The number of families (two or more persons related by marriage or blood) was given as 4,525, and the median income of these families in 1949 was $3,205. More than 22 per cent of these families had incomes of less than $2,000, and 20 per cent had incomes of $5,000 or more.

Of the county's total of 3,010 young persons between the ages of seven and seventeen years (school age), there were 1,930 between the ages of seven and thirteen years enrolled in primary schools (98.2 per cent), and 925 between the ages of fourteen and seventeen enrolled in high schools (88.5 per cent). Of all inhabitants of the county twenty-five years old and over, it was found that the median number of school years they completed was 8.9. In this same group, only 6.5 per cent had less than five grades of schooling, and 32.6 went through high school and college.

The potential labor force of the county in 1950 consisted of 12,730 persons fourteen years old and over, and of this total 6,231 were actually employed (more than 80 per cent of which were males, and 22.1 per cent females). The largest number of those employed were engaged in agriculture (1,865), and the second largest group were engaged in wholesale and retail trade (1,185). Of all persons employed in the county, 29.9 per cent were engaged in agriculture and 5.3 per cent in manufacturing.

In the field of housing, De Witt County had 5,748 dwelling units in 1950 (in 1940 it had 5,394), and the median number of rooms per unit was 5.3. Eighty-four per cent were one-dwelling unit detached structures, and 49.1 per cent had hot running water, private toilet and bath and were not dilapidated. More than 58 per cent were owner-occupied, 50.1 per cent had central heating, 79.2 per cent had mechanical refrigeration, and 96.6 per cent had radios. There were 4,184 classified as non-farm dwelling units, and the median value of these units was placed at $5,222. In renter-occupied units, the median gross monthly rental was placed at $39.44.

In 1948 (when the last business census was taken), there were 270 retail stores in the county (most of them in Clinton), and the sales of these stores that year amounted to $16,483,000. The largest group in this category were food stores, of which there were 55, with total sales amounting to $3,499,000. The second largest group were eating and drinking places (49), with sales amounting to $1,271,000. There were 50 wholesale establishments which grossed $31,410,000 in 1948. In that same year, the county's 9 manufacturing plants turned out products in the amount of $256,000.

Of the county's total of 1,356 farms, 1,200 were classified as commercial, and 51.5 per cent of the total were operated by tenants. The average value of land and buildings per farm for all farms was given as $50,517. In 1949, the value of all farm products sold was $12,485,000. Farm expenditures that same year for all farms were $895,000 for feed for livestock and poultry, and $662,000 for hired labor.

CITY of CLINTON

Largest community of De Witt County and that county's seat is Clinton city, with a population of 5,945. Its city zone population (which embraces all of Clintonia Township) is locally estimated at 8,500. It is also the center of a retail trading area informally estimated at 16,500 population.

As the story of Clinton is largely the story of De Witt County itself, many details of the city's historical past will be found in the opening narrative of this book. The city is located forty-five miles northeast of Springfield, capital of Illinois, and is served by the Illinois Central System and the Illinois Traction Railway, as well as by US highways 48, 51, 54 and by State 10.

Among leading manufacturing plants in Clinton are the Beatrice Foods Company, Clinton Pure Ice Company, Clinton Tank Company, Lee Garment Company, Clinton Ice Company, Illinois Central System Shops, Clinton Ceramic Company and the Revere Copper & Brass Company. The city has two banks, with total deposits of $11,400,038.

In 1948 the city had 138 retail stores which employed 491 persons and the sales of which amounted to $9,260,000. The largest number of retail establishments were food stores (24), which grossed $2,077,000. Among grocery stores in the city are two supermarkets conducted by the Korger and Eisner national chains. The only newspaper in the city is the Clinton Journal-Public, with an evening circulation of 3,015.

This map shows the township of Clinton, Illinois, divided into 36 sections. The Clinton River flows through the eastern part of the township. Major roads include US Highway 54 running east-west and several north-south roads. Railroad lines are shown as thick black lines with cross-ticks. Key locations include Wapella in the northeast (POP. 504) and Clinton in the southeast (POP. 5,945). The map is labeled with section numbers 1 through 36, and township/range coordinates T 20 N and R 10 E.

MIDLAND CITY

M I D L A N D   C I T Y

On the western edge of De Witt County lies the village of Midland City, with a population of 142. Through it runs the Illinois Central Railroad and State 10. The village was platted in 1875 and was at first called Dunham. G. W. Middlecoff built the first house in the village, and part of this was a grocery store. Midland City is in Barnett Township, which has a total population of 693. The township was named after Franklin Barnett, who was the oldest inhabitant within its borders when the township was organized.

HALLSVILLE

Another community in Barnett Township is Hallsville, which has a population of 123. It, also, is on the Illinois Central Railroad and on State 10. The village was laid out in 1871 by Jonathan Hall. In that same year the firm of Hall & Deland opened a general store in the new village.

T A B O R

Still another community in Barnett Township is the hamlet of Tabor. It has a population of 36. Tabor is on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

This is a detailed map of the Weldon Springs area in Illinois. The map features a grid of 36 numbered blocks, arranged in a 6x6 pattern. The blocks are labeled with numbers 1 through 36. The map includes several geographical features and labels: 'ILLINOIS' is written across the top; 'WELDON SPRINGS' is written in the upper left; 'CREEK' is written in the upper right; 'LANE' is written in the center; and 'FRIENDS' is written in the lower right. A compass rose is located in block 12. A thick black line runs diagonally across the top left. A dashed line with arrows indicates a path through blocks 27, 33, and 34. Various symbols like small squares and triangles are scattered throughout the blocks. The map is titled 'WELDON SPRINGS' in the upper left corner.

LANE

Just southeast of Clinton city, on the Illinois Central Railroad, is located the village of Lane, with a population of 138. It was platted in 1873 by Tillmon Lane. The village is the only community in Creek Township, which has a total population of 794. First settler of the township was Abram Lisenby, who arrived in 1830. He was the father of ten children --- six sons and four daughters.

A detailed map of the De Witt area in Illinois, showing a grid of 36 numbered sections. The map includes the Illinois River, the Central Railroad, and the De Witt River. Key locations marked include Parnell, Fullerton, and De Witt. The map also shows the intersection of the Illinois River and the Central Railroad, and the location of the De Witt River. The map is titled 'DE WITT' and 'ILLINOIS'.

DE WITT

Second oldest community in De Witt County is the village of De Witt, located northeast of Clinton city on the Illinois Central Railroad and on State 54. It has a population of 216. The village was platted in 1836, or three years before De Witt County was organized. Its founder was Benjamin S. Day, an early settler. At first the village was called Marion, but when De Witt County was created in 1839 the the name was changed to De Witt. The village is the largest community in De Witt Township, with a total population of 665. One of the first settlers of the township was J. J. McGraw, who came in 1830.

FULLERTON

Fullerton is located just northeast of De Witt village, and it, too, is on the Illinois Central Railroad. Its population is 45. This hamlet was founded in the early 1870's, or soon after the railroad was built through the region.

PARNELL

Another hamlet in De Witt Township is Parnell, with a population of 47. It was founded in 1880 by James Potter and named in honor of the Irish patriot, Charles Stewart Parnell.

The map shows a grid of 36 numbered sections. The sections are arranged in a roughly rectangular pattern, with some sections being larger than others. The sections are numbered 1 through 36. The map includes labels for 'H.A.R.P.', 'NORTH', 'BIRKBECK', 'SA 16', 'FA 161', and 'CR'. A thick black line runs diagonally across the middle, likely representing a major road or boundary. The map is divided into sections by dashed lines, with some sections containing small black dots or symbols.

B I R K B E C K

Only community in Harp Township is the hamlet of Birkbeck, with a population of 49. It is located just northeast of Clinton city on the Illinois Central Railroad. The village was laid out in the early 1870's and was named after Morris Birkbeck, who founded an English colony near Albion, Illinois, in 1818, and whose book, Letters From Illinois, brought many additional English immigrants to the Prairie State. The township in which Birkbeck is located has a total population of 602. Two of its earliest settlers were Joseph and Tyre Harp, who came in 1831.

Founded in 1872, the town of Weldon is named after Judge Lawrence Weldon, pioneer lawyer, friend of Lincoln's and later a judge of the United States Court of Claims. His memory is also honored in the name of Weldon Springs Park, near Clinton city. Today, the town of Weldon has a population of 492. It is located on the Illinois Central Railroad, and on State 10. Weldon is the only community in Nixon Township, with a total population of 881. First settler of the township was Cicero Twist, who arrived in 1850. Soon afterwards came the Nixon brothers, George, William and Morris, and it was after them the township received its name.

FARMER CITY

Second largest town in De Witt County is Farmer City, the population of which in 1950 was 1,752. It is also one of the oldest towns in the county, having been founded in 1837 --- two years before De Witt County was formed. At first it was called Mount Pleasant, but in 1868 the village of Mount Pleasant was incorporated as a town and its name changed to Farmer City. The original village was laid out by Nathan Clearwaters, John W. Bradley and Robert M. Patterson, all early settlers of Santa Anna Township, in which Farmer City is located. The population of the township today is 2,305. First permanent settler of the township is believed to have been Dennis Hurley, who arrived with his family in 1830.

WEEDMAN

RUTLEDGE TOWNSHIP

In the northeast corner of the county, not far from Farmer City, stretches the fertile acres of Rutledge Township. It has a total population of 285. First settler of the township was Charles McCord, who arrived in 1833. In 1835 there came William J. Rutledge, and it was after him the township was named. With him were his wife, Eliza, and two children, John A. and Martha J. Not long afterwards James Vandeventer arrived from Tennessee and soon became a leader in affairs of the early settlement out of which emerged Rutledge Township.

OSPUR

Another small community in Texas Township is Ospur. It, also, is on the main line of the Illinois Central System and on US 51. Ospur is in the midst of a rich farming area drained by nearby Salt Creek.

C R A I G

Just south of Clinton city, on the main line of the Illinois Central system, is located the hamlet of Craig, with a population of 39. It is also situated on US 51, one of the main north-south highways in Illinois. Craig is in Texas Township, which has a population of 498. First settler of the township was Thomas Davenport, who arrived with his family in 1829. He found the area a meeting place for Kickapoo Indians.

KENNEY

Principal community of Tunbridge Township, in the southwest corner of the county, is the village of Kenney, with a population of 409. It is located on State 54 and at the intersection of the Illinois Central and Pennsylvania railroads. The village was laid out in 1871 by Moses Kenney. The township in which it is located, Tunbridge, has a total population of 979. It was in this township there lived the first settlers of De Witt County. These were a party of five persons, consisting of Zion and Edon Shugart and their mother, and Elisha Butler and his wife. After their arrival in the fall of 1824, the two families built log cabins and staked out small farms.

W A P E L L A

Situated on the main line of the Illinois Central Railroad and with a present population of 504, the village of Wapella was platted in 1854 by David A. Neal, who at that time was a vice-president of the newly-organized Illinois Central Railroad. At a later date Wapella made an unsuccessful effort to secure for itself the county seat. This village is the only community of Wapella Township, which has a population of 958. The first settlers of the township were John P. Glenn, John Young and William Vinson, who arrived in 1829. All of them were from the South.

WAYNESVILLE

The village of Waynesville, with a population of 516, serves as a shopping and trading center for residents in the northwest corner of De Witt County. It is located on the Pennsylvania Railroad. Waynesville has the distinction of being the oldest community in De Witt County, having been established in 1832 --- seven years before De Witt County was organized. The founder of the village was George Isham, who built the first house and the first school in the community. Today, Waynesville is the only village in Waynesville Township, the population of which is 865. First settlers of the township were Prettyman Marvel and his bride of a few months, Rebecca. They arrived in February, 1823 and staked out a claim and built a log cabin near the future village of Waynesville.

SOLOMON

Only community of Wilson Township, on the north border of De Witt County, is the hamlet of Solomon, with a population of 51. It is situated in the midst of a level, fertile farming region. The township in which Solomon is located has a present population of 335. Among early settlers in the township were Thomas and Edward Wilson, brothers, who came in 1834. Another brother, Edward, arrived in 1837. Still other settlers were Jacob Walters, John Lash, John Guittman and Michael Troutman.
